• CRAFT/PROFESSION

Dominique HAOATAI is a dressmaker. She designs clothes for adults and kids, and household linen that everyone can afford. She matches up Polynesian fabrics to create brightly coloured outfits and accessories.

Recycling is a priority; she loves giving old clothes a fresh lease of life, using her craft to make distinctive one-off garments.

• BACKGROUND

Fabrics and design are a family affair, passed on from generation to generation. Dominique learned and perfected her skills by helping her mother, a professional seamstress, and she has never lost her passion for designing clothes.

Since 2015, Dominique has been making sheets, cushions and curtains which even the most impecunious can afford to buy. An act of solidarity dear to her heart.

Not long afterwards, she set up her "Couleur d'Outre-Mer" company in order to reach a wider customer base and fulfil made-to-measure orders.

• INSPIRATION AND ART/DESIGNS

Dominique designs collections in colourful flowery fabrics for kids and adults. She draws her inspiration from her travels and from nature, and her work celebrates the tropical hues of South Pacific flowers, seascapes and landscapes.

She is dedicated to creating articles that everyone can enjoy, whatever their means.
